Honorable William J. Casey
Director of Central Intelligence
Washington, D. C. 20505

Dear Bill:

Earlier this year, I had discussed with Bobby Inman the expansion proposal involving the Central Intelligence Agency's complex in Langley, Virginia.

I have been contacted by Sid Dewberry, President of Dewberry and Davis, an outstanding architectural and engineering firm in Virginia, who is bidding on the expansion project. While Dewberry and Davis are well established and respected for their professionalism, that is not the purpose of my letter.

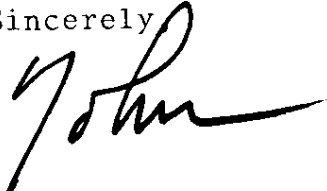

It is my understanding that "politics" may be creeping into the selection process. I have discussed with Bobby that my only concern is that the very best firm be selected and that politics should not play a role in determining which firm is to perform the expansion work.

I am well aware of some of the community concerns, but assure you that this expansion in Virginia is something that I support and am confident that it will be well received.

Thank you for your attention to this concern.

Kindest regards,

Sincerely

John W. Warner
